- Business skills – training from leading external presenters on practical business skills

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

Who else will be attending the sessions?

Most of the sessions are designed for both in-house counsel and Simpson Grierson's own lawyers. This approach, we believe, leads to a stimulating training experience for both our clients and our lawyers.

How do I know what sessions are coming up?

You can view the programme calendar online at www.simpsongrierson.com/insightstraining. It details events over the next three to four months.

We will also send you a monthly email highlighting new events that have been added.

How do I book to attend a session?

You can book online at www.simpsongrierson.com/insightstraining/ or email our programme administrator at insightstraining@simpsongrierson.com.

You will receive an email back confirming your registration, and a reminder email a few days ahead of the session.

Can my colleagues attend?

Of course. Just let us know and we will add their names to our list.

Do the sessions provide CPD points?

Yes. The number of CPD points for each session is listed on our website calendar.

When attending the session, you will sign an attendance form. Following the session we will email you confirming that you have attended, with details of the training that you can add to your CPD Plan and Record.

Can the training be tailored and run specifically for my organisation?

For many of the sessions, this may well be possible. Please talk to your usual Simpson Grierson partner contact about this.
